

Seeing things whole and sensing relationships and connections

Ben knew that Trevor wanted to connect with Dot so he stayed back (even though he was hungry) to give him space to take her on a date.

She knew Ben's story but still listened with an open mind and asked him what it was like to be a parent, which is a big question for someone who has lost as a kid.

The ability to keep an open mind and hear without judgement

Ability to be a servant, helper, and teacher first then a leader

All Trevor wanted to do was pee standing up. Ben made this happen. He tried many different ways but did give up until they succeeded.

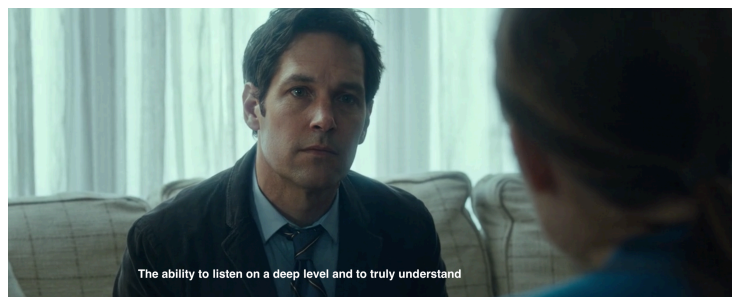

The believe that honestly sharing critical challenges with all parties and asking for their input is more important than personally providing solutions

The ability to use foresight and intuition

Being clear on goals and good at pointing the direction toward goal achievement without giving orders

The ability to listen on a deep level and to truly understand
